Excerpt from Brisbane Times, July 17, 2013

http://www.brisbanetimes.com.au/business/carbon-economy/week-in-review-globalclean-energy-investments-on-the-rise-20130717-2q30i.html

Week in review: Global clean energy investments on the rise

New figures released by Bloomberg New Energy Finance last week showed clean energy investment rose in the past three months, while India's biggest solar producing state sought to join governments from Spain to Greece in backtracking support for renewables.

. . . .

Finally, the WilderHill New Energy Global Innovation Index, or NEX, which tracks 98 clean energy stocks, was a leading participant in last week's global equities party, adding 3.2 per cent to close on 12 July at 155.09.

The top NEX weekly gainer was Germany's Solarworld. The module supplier's shares leapt 24.6 per cent in a week when news outlets reported that trade officials from the EU and China were progressing in discussions to head off new import duties on solar hardware.

• • • •